

MARCH 2021

NATIONAL OFFICE MONTHLY REPORT

FROM THE CEO

Advocacy on the IR Omnibus Bill, changes to HomeBuilder to relieve supply pressures and the upcoming May Federal Budget have been our priorities for March.

The effective failure of the Omnibus Bill (only 1 of the 5 schedules was passed) is a bitter disappointment. The industry wants to see a more efficient EBA process, particularly those who wish to pursue non-union EBAs, and more effective Greenfield Agreement parameters. Despite overwhelming evidence to justify predominantly process changes that favoured both employers and employees, the heavy hand of politics won over rational and fair policy outcomes yet again. Master Builders will now turn its efforts to reminding the Federal Government of its commitment 12 months ago (when it set aside the Ensuring Integrity Bill to enable the Omnibus negotiations to commence) to introduce a new Bill that ensures recidivist officials are truly held accountable for their actions.

The overwhelming success of HomeBuilder has led to supply chain pressures for both product and skilled trades. Master Builders conducted a survey during March to quantify the problem and has used the survey results to advocate for the removal of the commencement date as it is now a redundant requirement that was established to ensure there was ongoing work for an industry facing a cliff.

Our advocacy on the May Budget continued this month with a particular focus on concerns about the significant decline in commercial construction activity (including high rise residential). We have advocated several measures to facilitate private investment and direct government support in social and defence infrastructure, fast-track tax deductions for capital works and the Community Builder concept.

WOMEN BUILDING AUSTRALIA

Women Building Australia's (WBA) first career expo for the year kicked off in March at the South Australia Work & Skills Expo. MBA staff member Luke Lowes and MBASA staff member Johanna Herrera were in attendance to support the program highlighting to female school leavers the industry's fantastic career opportunities.

There is a full program of WBA career expos scheduled to make up from last year. The next expo is in Toowoomba, followed by expos throughout Australia.

The purpose of the meeting was gather real world, anecdotal evidence on the issue of building businesses being impeded by regulations which are duplicated by two or more levels of government. • Chief Economist and Treasury with respect to role of foreign investors in commercial building projects. This is part of an internal work programme within Treasury to assess any potential risks to national security arising from office buildings being owned or managed by foreign entities. • Treasury's Business Liaison Unit on the capacity for the industry to deliver on its long term infrastructure needs. The current shortages of trades and materials were brought to Treasury's attention, as was the importance of delivering a workforce commensurate with long-term needs.

- Productivity Commission Supply Chain report
 - Medium term workforce needs
- An interim report of the stability of Australia's supply chain for imported products has been released. Given the importance of imported materials to our industry, Master Builders will be responding to the report's findings.
 - Master Builders projections of medium-term workforce needs. Following the completion of our updated set of forecasts for construction activity, we will be commencing a project to estimate the numbers of workers required in our industry over the medium term to undertake the expected pipeline of work.

Industrial Relations

- IR Omnibus Bill - In the lead up to the debate of the Bill in the Senate, the National Office held meetings with ministerial staff and cross bench senators, on the necessity of passage of key parts of the Bill. Our particular focus was advocating in favour of the provisions that would see improvements to agreement making processes. National Office provided numerous updates and advice as the debate and changes to the Bill rapidly unfolded.
 - Construction Modern Award 4 Yearly Review - The National Office appeared before a Full Bench of the Fair Work Commission in late February arguing to resolve ambiguity about the Distant Work provisions in the new Award. Shortly after, the FWC handed down a decision wherein it acknowledged our submissions that the new clause inadvertently caused confusion and potentially a double-dip entitlement. The National Office then made supplementary submissions on how the issue could be remedied.
 - ABCC Meeting - The National Office met with members of the ABCC to receive an update on the plethora of proceedings it has brought for numerous breaches of the BCIP Act. It was observed that the Agency currently has 11 matters on foot, 9 of which constitute alleged breaches on the part of CFMMEU officials. We also discussed ongoing issues with respect to the various State/Territory procurement codes and policies and their concerning intersection with IR.
- Despite our disappointment that key parts of the Bill were removed, it was pleasing to see some improvements were achieved with respect to casuals. We will continue to advocate for much needed reform to EBA/FWC processes under the Act for the benefits of our members.
 - National Office will await the Commission's final decision and communicate relevant changes to members.
 - National Office will continue to build support for the retention of the ABCC and will also engage in the review on the Building Code 2016, likely to take place in the latter part of 2021. We will also work with the relevant State Associations to urge Government to addressing worrying developments with respect to procurement.

- ACCI Workplace Policy Committee - A meeting of the Committee was held to discuss Fair Work Commission's Annual Wage Review and ACCI's submissions to the proceedings, which will advocate for restraint in terms of any increase in light of the economic recovery on foot.
- National Industrial Relations Advisory Committee - A formal meeting of NIRAC was held via Zoom on 11 March 2021.
- National Office with continue to monitor progress of the matter and provide any necessary feedback during the course of the review.
- Discussions were around NIRAC's 2021 strategy and priority positions including a potential Construction Industry Specific version of the Ensuring Integrity Bill, the IR Omnibus Bill, and response to the recent ALP IR policy announcements.

Jobs & Skills

- National Jobs & Skills Committee – The Committee met on 15 March, discussing 2021 priorities including training, migration, apprentices, and licensing, as well as actions and deliverables. The next meeting is scheduled for 27 March in Canberra.
- PaTH Business Partnerships – The National Office ran focus groups on 18 March with employment service providers, jobseekers and employers in Albury to understand local workforce needs, opportunities and barriers ahead of designing pre-employment training pilots.
- Migration – Informed by the MBA survey findings, the National Office advocated for migration and workforce solutions to address pressing labour shortages, making submissions to the Senate Inquiry into Australia's Skilled Migration Program and the National Skills Commission's survey on the Skills Priority List, as well as writing to the new Minister for Home Affairs and Minister for Employment.
- Apprenticeships – The Government announced the extension of the Boosting Apprenticeship Commencements initiative, a position the National Office advocated for in our pre-Budget submission. Numbers were uncapped and the 50% wage subsidy extended to 12 months from sign-up.
- Occupational Licensing – The legislation to enable automatic mutual recognition of occupational licensing across state borders was introduced and passed the House of Representatives. It will now progress to the Senate.
- White Card training – Assessment requirements are being strengthened following concerns raised by Safe Work. The final consultation survey for this project is open until Monday 19 April.
- Silica safety training – The National Office attended the first meeting of the Silica Working Group established to develop units of competency on Silica Awareness.
- Australian Training Awards – Nominations are now open for the 2021 Awards with categories for students, apprentices, training providers and employers. The National Office encourages MBAs and member businesses to nominate.

Work Health & Safety

- Vaccine roll-out - National Office has provided further feedback and updates on the various guidance materials produced by Safe Work Australia.
- Office of Federal Safety Commissioner - National Office attended a meeting of a working group facilitated by the FSC to discuss the publication of an OFSC Mental Health Mission Statement.
- ASEA - The National Office participated in a final Asbestos Risk Communication Guidelines Workshop this month, organised by ASEA. The aim of the guidelines being developed is to ensure that asbestos related safety awareness information produced by all Government regulators is consistent right around Australia to reduce confusion ensure clarity.
- Standards Australia - Occupational Health and Safety Management - The National Office attended a meeting last month of the technical committee (SF-001) charged with the review and publication of WHS-related Australian Standards. The Discussion focussed heavily on whether or not Australia should identically adopt the ISO 45001 handbook for small business, a position we strongly objected to.
- Review of National Assessment Instruments for High Risk Work - The National Office met with the nominee who sits on the review panel which has been charged with reviewing NAI's for the recently updated HRW Units of Competency.
- SWA - The National Office continued to provide feedback on the unrelenting volume of documentation and projects coming out of SWA, both out of session and in the lead up to SWA members' meetings. Key issues included proposed regulatory reforms with respect to silica, including a ban on dry cutting and the introduction of a licensing scheme.
- National Office will continue to monitor rollout and provide feedback to Government about any workplace issues. We will continue to press the need for certainty on a raft of questions raised by members including the issue of potential liabilities in the event of an adverse reaction to the vaccine.
- National Office has reiterated the need to avoid confusion given the plethora of documents in circulation that deal with mental health in the workplace. We will continue to advocate that any document produced by the OFSC be high level and not impact upon existing Scheme audit criteria.
- National Office will continue its close engagement with ASEA to ensure any guidelines developed are workable and a useful tool.
- Despite initially holding the minority view, the National Office together with ACCI was successful in persuading the group to vote against adoption of the ISO handbook in favour of the development of much needed Australian guidance.
- The National Office nominee will continue this review work, with an anticipated release of the NAIs in the latter part of 2021.
- National Office will continue to devote considerable time to oversight of SWA projects, to ensure the regulatory framework with respect to WHS is practicable and focussed on improving safety outcomes.

- WHS Communications - National Office produced and published an interview with OFSC David Denney on the improved safety outcomes experienced by accredited companies under the OFSC's Scheme.
- Draft NSW Mental Health Code of Practice - National Office attended a meeting with MBA NSW and SafeWork NSW to discuss its draft Mental Health Code of Practice. We proposed a number of changes to the draft to address some of its overly technical elements and to eliminate parts that were either unclear or inconsistent with established principles.
- National Work Health and Safety Committee - A formal meeting of NWHSC was held on 10 March 2020 via Zoom.
- National Office will continue to work with members and industry stakeholders to promote the good news stories of our members in terms of WHS.
- National Office will monitor development of the Code and provide further feedback as required.
- NWHSC discussed its 2021 strategy and priority positions, with a key focus being on vaccines and the progress of the Model WHS laws. A meeting of State/Territory WHS Ministers in April 2021 where they will discuss the merits of adopting Marie Boland's extensive recommendations.
